The Centre for Competitiveness licences e-Zsigma™ for their Six Sigma training curriculum.

BELFAST, NI – September 24, 2001 – The Centre for Competitiveness, (www.cforc.org), a Belfast-based quality institution, has chosen e-Zsigma™ to provide the foundation for its Six Sigma training program.

Under a special licencing arrangement, The Centre for Competitiveness is also authorized to sub-licence the unique e-Zsigma curriculum to clients and other quality organizations that are seeking a comprehensive training program that will enable them to rapidly establish their Six Sigma centres of expertise.

The Centre for Competitiveness (CforC) is a private sector, not for profit, membership organisation actively supporting the development of an internationally competitive economy in Northern Ireland through innovation, productivity improvement and quality excellence in the private, voluntary and public sectors. The Centre for Competitiveness forms part of the Northern Ireland Business Alliance.

With offices in Boston, Wichita, and Toronto, and supported by an international team of Six Sigma, Lean, and management specialists, e-Zsigma™ delivers a comprehensive suite of products, consulting, and training services that enable organizations to achieve “best in class” performance.

e-Zsigma’s technology group, with the launch of the first web-enabled Six Sigma Enterprise Solution in 2000, continue to support the Six Sigma technology requirements of our customers.

For additional information on e-Zsigma or the products that they offer visit their Web site at <http://www.e-zsigma.com> or call (416) 593-8026.
